3034: The Saga of Mary Rose - A Science Fiction Story of a Girl Who Changes the World tells of a girl born on January 1, 2000. The book begins in the year 3034 in a peaceful society that has ruled Earth for one thousand years. But things are not as they seem in this bucolic paradise. Returning to the year Mary Rose is born, the tale follows her life as she becomes a student at MIT when she is twelve years old. She later uses her brilliant mind to determine galactic alignment and chemical and mathematical formulas to create a biological computer that she names Halena.

Mary Rose is a genius who uses the information provided by Halena to create new technology in cars, trucks, airplanes, spacecraft and in medicine. She uses Halena to help her invent a new source of power that changes the way the world creates energy. When the U.S. government is overthrown and a new world order is created, Mary Rose's company grows along with her power and fame. She monitors the new world government as it helps mankind. But the day comes when the new government requires people to deny God or be killed. What can she do to stop the world order? About the Author Retired from the plastics industry, Myrle E. Morgan was born in California but now calls Arizona home. Publishers website: <http://sbpra.com/MyrleEMorgan>
