

Keewatin: Land of the Northwest Wind

The pilot's name is David Hawkins and fate places him in the hands of Dr. Lyle Woods after being seriously wounded while on a bombing mission over Germany during the latter part of WWII. During his lengthy convalescence, the two men forge a deep, powerful relationship which draws the two together five years later in the wilds of northern Saskatchewan, after the doctor experiences a crushing family tragedy. Armed with his indomitable good nature and laconic wit, Hawk takes the dispirited doctor literally under his wing, and the two embark on an extended journey into the north, away from the dark world of human suffering and into the realm of spiritual and physical healing. Fate intervenes and the two men are thrust into a life-and-death struggle for survival in the depths of the boreal forests of northern Saskatchewan. It is an entertaining and mesmerising adventure for the spirit told in the grandest tradition.
